Translation

Ano Kaya Ang Kapalaran

Here in this world
Nothing is more pleasant
Than to sing
One's own melody.
With every sound
The language is love.
She weaves
A heart that is charmed.
How hard it is to love,
My dear quickly bring compassion.
Day and night
The beating heart is oppressed.

What fate lies ahead
Of a humble state.
Expect not fortune,
You will receive bitterness.
Ah! Day and night
The beating heart is oppressed
Of humble state
Expect not fortune
You will receive bitterness,
Ah!

Casey Jay Blackwelder Music Scholarship

The UNC Charlotte Department of Music was heartbroken by the tragic death of recent graduate Casey Blackwelder (B.M. Performance, '17). Casey was a wonderful musician who made a number of outstanding contributions to our jazz program. He will be especially remembered by our faculty, staff, and students as a beloved friend whose humility and warm spirit touched everyone he met.

"Casey was an excellent musician and student, as well as an important member of the UNC Charlotte family. His many contributions to our department will never be forgotten."

– Dr. Will Campbell, Director, Jazz Studies

At the request of Casey's family, we are working toward establishing a music scholarship in his name. We hope that you consider helping us pay tribute to the legacy of this remarkable young man by making a contribution to the Casey Jay Blackwelder Music Scholarship. Every gift of every size will help us share Casey's love of life and music with the next generation of music majors.
